Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE
For long-lived pumpkins I think Honor Patton of near New Martinsburg takes the—pies!
Last fall when pumpkins were ripe one was stored in an upstairs room at the Patton home, and a few days ago Mrs. Patton decided that it was time to convert it into pies, so she proceeded to get the "pie fruit," found it in perfect condition after 10 months or more, and made five choice pies—to the delight of everyone who shared the pies.
It is very unusual that pumpkins keep under ordinary conditions more than a few months, but this particular pumpkin showed such remarkable keeping qualities that the seeds have been carefully cared for and will be planted next year to produce more of the long-keeping off-season pie-producers.
Honor has decided that it is hardly necessary to can pumpkins if they can be kept 10 months or longer, and then reduced to pies.

Captain Jess Ellis informed me Monday that another motorist who was operating a vehicle without proper muffler was cited to appear over the week end.
Captain Ellis said a number of such operators have been cited recently, and required to repair the mufflers of their vehicles before the citations are dropped.
The move to stop some of the needless noise of roaring motors I am certain will meet with hearty approval of citizens generally, and all unite in urging that the work be kept up and the noise brought under control.
Funny, isn't it, with the city surrounded by tens of thousands of acres of corn, that one may go into as many as two or three markets and fail to find a supply of sweet corn when there is such an abundance.
This has happened to me a couple of times recently, and I am still wondering whether the dealers were just out of good corn or were unable to obtain it.

HIGH WAGES BLAMED FOR MEAT SHORTAGE

Contributing Causes Given To Retailers Also

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—(AP)—President George A. Eastwood of Armour and Company today attributed the nation's "so-called meat shortage" to heavy consumer buying resulting from high wages, employment and national income.
He said in a speech prepared for the National Association of Independent Retail Meat Dealers that there had been various explanations for the shortage: that livestock producers were holding meat animals off the market, that shipments to the armed forces and Allies were cutting into the domestic supply.
"None of these so-called explanations is correct," he said. Actually, June output of meat was 29 percent above June, 1941, and July output 17 percent above July, 1941, he added, while current storage stocks are less than normal and heavy government purchases have not seriously curtailed the supply available for civilians.

ELEVEN NEW SHIPS LAUNCHED FOR U.S.

SOUTH PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 17.—(AP)—American shipyarders sent 11 new ships into the water yesterday—eight in Maine in the greatest mass launching in the nation's history—but workmen were urged to even greater efforts by Admiral Emory E. Land.
And in Texas, three ships were launched—a minesweeper and a cargo ship at the Pennsylvania yards in Beaumont, and the destroyer, Murray, at The Consolidated Steel Corporation Ltd., Texas yards at Orange.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Congress may be called upon to set up an authority with extensive control over the nation's manpower when it returns to work next month after its informal August vacation, informed sources said today.
Establishment of a commission to direct the flow of workers into essential war tasks was reported under consideration as an attempted solution of one of a half dozen pressing national problems on which legislative or executive action is planned.
The present war manpower commission was created by a presidential order and has no authority to enforce any of its suggestions or rulings, depending on cooperation and public opinion to get results. The proposed new manpower authority would have statutory creation and statutory authority to enforce orders and rules.

As an illustration of the lack of power to enforce its ideas, it was learned in other quarters that the War Manpower Commission was planning to ask the War and Navy Departments and the Maritime Commission to place inspectors in plants suspected of "hoarding" labor.
Such plants, operating on a "cost-plus" basis which means their payrolls are charged off to the government, have been reported corraling workers and holding them in anticipation of future needs.

Other problems generally regarded as likely to be unsolved when Congress gets down to work again included proposals for greater control over wages and prices, expansion of synthetic rubber production, possible nationwide rationing of gasoline and fuel oils and reorientation of war production to bring about the manufacture of equipment such as cargo-carrying planes.

Congress will be primarily concerned in September with Senate changes in the record-breaking tax bill which passed the House in July.

President Roosevelt said some time ago that he might have something to say to Congress on the question of stabilizing wages and prices.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 17.—(AP)—An amendment to the Ohio constitution requiring the Public Utilities Commission to fix utility rates on the basis of the money a public utility has "prudently invested" for the customers' service was proposed today by Cleveland's city law department.

In a report prepared for city council, law director Thomas A. Burke, Jr., and assistant director Spencer W. Reeder said the amendment could wipe out the production cost method of rate making.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Timeable bathing, shaving, laundering and dishwashing appears in prospect for New York City apartment house dwellers, whose supply of hot water would be limited to certain hours of the day under a rationing plan outlined by Mayor F. H. LaGuardia.

The mayor, announcing that New Yorkers will be asked in about a week to accept the limited hot water, said yesterday that if the public did not cooperate "we may all have to endure hot-waterless days" because of a scarcity of fuel.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The London Star's correspondent in Sydney, Australia, said today that despite the cautious tone of United Nations' communiques "it seems clear the Allies have already won in land, sea and air operations in the Solomons the greatest victory yet achieved against the Japanese."
Attributing Washington reluctance to give details on the Solomons action to security reasons, Speight said it was "reasonable to assume" that the U. S. Marines have achieved their major initial objectives.

Mayor Edward J. Jeffries and R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, contended that the five-page lead article, entitled "Detroit Is Dynamite," had unjustly impugned Detroit's patriotism.

"I'll match Detroit's patriotism against that of any other city in the country," declared Jeffries last night. "Why, anyone who lives here knows we haven't had a major labor dispute, except that on the Detroit street railways last year, in three years."

While Russia gave ground today in the Caucasus, fighting for time until Germany could be struck on a second front, it was officially disclosed that Prime Minister Churchill, in a personal visit, had worked out with Premier Stalin a series of decisions on conduct of the war.
Whatever they were, they remained to be put in visible effect. The second front which Russia desires and the Allies have promised was still on the planning boards, but evidently help for Russia was nearer, now that the leaders of the two governments had conferred.
A communique issued at Moscow after Churchill's departure—and presumably after his safe return to England—said that an "atmosphere of cordiality and complete sincerity" prevailed at the momentous first meeting of the two leaders. Negotiations were carried on August 12 to 15, inclusive.
A London announcement said of the conference that "a number of decisions covering the war" had been reached.
The Churchill-Stalin meeting reaffirmed the recent mutual assistance treaty between Britain and Russia, the Moscow announcement said.
The British said the visit had been concealed for security purposes; nevertheless, the

O.K. TOJO
you asked for it!

YOU dished it out, with a head start by treachery—now we're going to see how you can take it!

We're ganging up on you, Tojo, in a way you and your Nazi friends don't understand.

Spreading like wildfire from coast to coast and from Canada to Mexico is our Payroll Savings Plan—get that, Tojo? Not confiscation—savings.

By the tens of millions, workers and employes of plants in every state of our country are cooperating with their unions and with management.

Of their own free will they're agreeing to put ten percent—a dime from every dollar—of their earnings in United States WAR BONDS.

Every payday the plant management sets aside this ten percent, then, each time it adds up to $18.75, the worker gets his Bond.

See, Tojo? Hundreds of millions of good U. S. dollars are going into the planes, the tanks, the guns and the ships to blast you right out of your sandals!

And we're paying for it... the workers and employers... the farmers, doctors, lawyers... all of us of our own free will.

And—because this is the American way of doing things—we're building our own financial security, too, against the day when the war will be over—when we've shown you what decent, clean, free people can do.

Every year those War Bonds of ours increase in value, Tojo, until, after ten years, Uncle Sam hands us back TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS for every $18.75 we invested in beating you.

Get it, Tojo? It isn't the Jap way, the Nazi way, nor the Fascist way.

It's the free American way!

So, when you see those clouds of planes over your troops, your ships and your factories—when the tanks come at you

5 Reasons Why

① By investing in War Bonds you help provide the planes, the tanks, the guns and the ships we must have to survive and conquer.

② You prove that you are a patriotic American.

③ You aid the morale of our fighting men, by showing them that the entire Nation is behind them.

④ You prove to our enemies that we are a United People.

⑤ You protect your own financial future, as every $18.75 you invest in a War Bond brings you back $25 in 10 years. You make the world's safest investment, by buying a share in the world's most powerful country.

Rotarians and Lions Get Set for Softball Game

-Spying- On Sports

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—This one comes by a roundabout route, but, if true, it sounds like good news for football fans. . . . The story is that the Office of Defense Transportation has assured college representatives they'll be able to get transportation for teams this fall. . . . Looks as if Dixie Parsons might be the Tigers' only catcher the rest of the season. Birdie Tebbetts already is on his way to the army and the word is that young Harvey Riebeck, just bought from Beaumont, may be called any day.

Tattle Tale

Clyde Milan, the Washington coach, tells this Walter Johnson yarn that's new to this corner. . . . Seems that back in 1910 the big train pitched an exhibition against the Cubs and the first time up Johnny Evers slapped a single. . . . "So that's your great Walter Johnson," Johnny chortled to Milan. "We've got a dozen pitchers in the National League with more speed." . . . The next three times up Evers couldn't get a loud foul and after the third awfully he encountered Clyde again. "Damn you, Milan," Johnny crabbled. "You told Johnson what I said."

Postmans Paragraph

Dick Sherman of Jamestown, N. Y., writes that Cy Pirman, Jr., is by no means the youngest umpire in organized baseball. . . . The Pony League has one a year younger than Cy in 21-year-old Edward Luxemburg, who has been wearing a blue suit for three years. . . . and John McGill, Jr., of the Ashland, Ky., Daily Independent sends in a suggestion that the movie folks make a film story of Babe Ruth's life. . . . After all, McGill points out, "thousands of Ruth fans never had the opportunity to see him in action."

Today's Guest Star

Jimmie Murphy, Canton (Ill.) Daily Ledger: "A headline: 'Cubs Have 48 men in armed forces.' . . . Now if they only had a few ball players in Chicago everything would be oke."

Service Dept.

Lieut. Dick Chapman, former amateur golf champ, is the winner of the recent "remote control" golf tournament. He drew for the prize after a three-way tie with 64's. . . . Dick Rendell, sports editor of the Camp Lee (Va.) Traveler, reports that when a pal asked Freddie Hutchinson if you have to be good to make the Norfolk Naval Training Station nine, Freddie answered: "You have to win or else go to sea."

Dizzy Chase In AA Paced By Red Birds

(By The Associated Press) The Milwaukee Brewers today were in fourth place—in the American Association merry-go-round—the lowest they've been during most of the season—but the race was so close they were only 2½ games behind league-leading Columbus.

All top-runners but Milwaukee split doubleheaders yesterday. The Brewers dropped a pair to Louisville, 3-2 and 2-1. Toledo's eight-game winning chain was broken by last-place St. Paul, 6-4, but the Hens flew back to win the nightcap, 5-4. Johnny Pask, St. Paul catcher, was struck on the head by one of Bud Parmelee's fast balls and was taken to a hospital for examination.

Kansas City was dropped, 4-2, by Indianapolis but bounced back in the second game to win, 2-1, in an extra inning. Minneapolis broke a six-game losing slump by beating Columbus, 5-4, in 12 innings, but the Red Birds took the second, 2-0. Stu Martin's single and Ab Wright's two bagger with one out in the 12th decided the first encounter.

No games were scheduled today. Decendants of the original Dutch settlers—now called Afrikaners—account for about 56 per cent of the white population of South Africa, the British about 39 per cent.

REES TROUNCED TWICE BY CARDS AND SENT DOWN

Al Javery of Braves, Hottest Pitcher in Baseball, Blanks Dodgers

(By The Associated Press) After what happened to their pitchers in last month's all-star game, the National League master minds should be giving themselves a good mental kicking around every time they read Al Javery's name in a box score these days.

When he blanked the Dodgers 2 to 0 in seven innings yesterday, Javery completed his 19th consecutive inning without having allowed a run.

The Dodgers' setback, in conjunction with the St. Louis Cardinals' double victory over Cincinnati, 10-5 and 6-3, put the Cards back with eight games of the top today.

The Chicago Cubs, behind tight pitching by Bill Lee and Les Fleming, defeated Pittsburgh, 5-1 and 4-1.

Mel Ott's Giants tightened their hold on third place by trimming the Phils 6-5. The Boston Red Sox took a firmer grip on second place in the American League as they swept their doubleheader with Washington, 6-4 and 10-3. They held a three-game lead over Cleveland today.

Home runs by Joe DiMaggio and Joe Gordon paced the Yankees to an 11-2 victory over the Athletics in a six-inning affair at Shibe Park. Detroit came from behind twice to win two decisions over the Chicago White Sox, 3-2 and 7-3, the first game going 11 innings. Cleveland, the St. Louis Browns battled to a stand-off, the Indians winning the first game 3-2 in 11 innings and the Browns taking the second 6-1.

Twenty-eight of the golfers who are among the best whackers at the Country Club course today had qualified for a shot at the crown, emblematic of the club championship, now perched atop Ronnie Cornwell's brow. The tournament will be spread over a period of several weeks as the players are eliminated through match play.

Sparkplug Maker Champion Of Ohio Publinks Golfers

By FRITZ HOWELL

TOLEDO, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. P. J. (Thelma) Linster of Mansfield, held Ohio's feminine public links golf crown for the third straight year today, while Val Chiaverini of Toledo, 23-year-old sparkplug plant employee, was on the men's throne.

The two stars won yesterday in the 13th annual tournament, slashed to 36 holes and a single day of play because of the war.

The East won its sixth game in 10 played in the series by a score of 5-2. Paige went to the mound in the seventh inning with the count deadlocked 2-all and gave up a run. The East clubbed him for two more runs in the ninth when Bill Wright of Baltimore singled with bases loaded.

CARGO PLANES
There is nothing basically new in the idea of using cargo airplanes to supplant water-borne transport. It has long been urged by such authorities on the strength and the adaptability of airpower as Major de Seversky. And Hitler himself has made excellent use of the cargo plane. In the Crete campaign, for instance, the British had superiority in seapower. But the Germans took to the air, and used their air freighters to bring in men, materials and supplies. The result was that British sea superiority proved to be of almost no importance. The British men-of-war dominated the sea lanes—but they could do nothing to the Nazi air transports which flew safely overhead.

What is new is the magnitude of the plan recently proposed by Henry J. Kaiser, and supported by a number of the principal builders of aircraft. The German planes so far used have been relatively small—Mr. Kaiser envisages air freighters of 200 to 500 tons. The German planes, due to the Reich's geographical position, have not had to have any great range—Mr. Kaiser envisages freighters which can cross the seas and still have capacity for tremendous amounts of cargo. The German planes, it is believed, were and are being produced slowly and in relatively small numbers—Mr. Kaiser talks of building planes of vast size under a mass-production system which will turn them out almost as quickly as Detroit assembly lines used to turn out motor cars.

No one can deny that the cargo idea, if it is workable will prove at least a partial solution to the most difficult problem the United Nations face. So far as production for war is concerned, this country has generally realized the "arsenal of democracy" goal laid down by the President. But getting that production to the far-flung battlefronts of this global war is a very different matter. The hard truth is that the Axis is sinking more ships than the United Nations can replace—and it is sinking with them an enormous amount of vital supplies. The Navy has not been able to solve the problem. And some authorities are convinced that it is basically insoluble—that terrible losses will continue and perhaps mount, unless and until the freighters leave the water and take to the skies.

Even the biggest cargo planes so far built cannot carry a great deal in one trip. But, over a period of time, their speed will make up for that lack. It is said, for instance, that 40 flying boats of the 70-ton size are equal to a 10,800-ton Liberty ship in carrying capacity. An ordinary freighter can make only three round trips to and from Australia in the course of a year—and a cargo plane can make 26. A cargo plane might make 70 or more round trips carrying freight and troops to England.

Skeptics have said that Mr. Kaiser's plan is impractical and visionary—that it is impossible to build cargo planes on a mass-production basis in shipyards. But Mr. Kaiser and other builders have confounded skeptics before this on many occasions. According to him, both his own yards and others of a similar type are adequately equipped to build the planes. He has said also that a plant could be built quickly to supply necessary materials without detracting from other essen-

America Can Even Produce Own Cork Now

By WILLIAM C. HERBERT
(Wide World News Service)
COLUMBIA, S. C.—Cork trees are beginning to do their part in ending the reign of the boll weevil in the south.
For more than 2,300 years the world's supply of cork has come from the shores of the western Mediterranean but the war has curtailed imports. Private interest have turned to central California and the southern states where the climate and rainfall fairly duplicate growing conditions needed by cork trees.
The long-range program to make over the South's cotton agriculture into diversified farming is brief in contrast to the years needed before a Tomahawk-like blade can separate 150 to 200 pounds of bark from a mature tree. The cork oak grows slowly. The first stripping of cork tial phases of the war effort. These planes would require, by comparison with ships, a fairly small amount of steel—and steel is one of the major bottlenecks of the present time. The steel mills have done a fine job in stepping up capacity to the utmost—but they simply haven't been able to turn out enough.

So far as the practicality of the planes themselves is concerned, there seems to be little question. The gigantic flying boat "Mars," built as an experiment by the Glenn Martin Company, has proved completely successful in its trials. The Army's B-19, largest land plane ever built, has also proved its worth. And far bigger planes still are now on the drawing boards of the designers.
The advocates of cargo planes also say that they would be extremely difficult to intercept and destroy. Their range and speed would be so great that they could constantly change their routes. When approaching their destinations, Allied fighters could be sent out to screen them and bring them in. Due to the time element alone, merchant ships must closely follow certain definite and prescribed routes—and they must, at the end of their journeys, converge on ports which are known to the enemy. The planes, in brief, would be infinitely more flexible.
Steps are being taken to get the Kaiser program started. The skeptics are waiting and watching with their fingers crossed—while the plan's backers seem to have no doubts at all. Inside a year, the country should know which side is right.

More than 400 men, it is said, have been saved from a watery grave by a new lapel torch recently perfected by industry. Worn on the life jacket, the torch's glowing red bulb leads rescue vessels to men who otherwise might not be found in a dark sea.
To us it is positive proof that a man has real courage when he goes thousands of feet in the air and fights in an airplane.

Deadly Venoms Used To Alleviate Pains
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
ONE DAY ABOUT 15 years ago a New York doctor named Adolphe Monaelesser was traveling in Cuba and he somehow met and got to talking with a leper who
Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.
had a very painful form of neuralgia until he was stung by a semi-poisonous tropical spider. Then his pain left him.
Dr. Monaelesser got to thinking, and studying and he found that the venom of most poisonous "varmints" has an element in it which paralyzes the peripheral nerves—it is called the "neurotoxin." He took the idea to Dr. Calmette, of Paris, who, after experiments, selected cobra venom and was able to isolate the neurotoxic element in practically pure form, and on using it on patients with painful affections, he found that it stopped the pain in a large number of cases.
Used for Arthritis
Now cobra venom is procurable at your corner drug store, put up in sterile ampoules ready to use. I know a woman who was miserably afflicted with arthritis for years who takes cobra venom regularly three times a week and while it has not changed the stiffness of the joints, it has made life comfortable and bearable for her.
It may take a good deal of courage on the part of your doctor to tell you he intends to shoot cobra venom into you and it may startle and frighten you at first. But as a matter of experience, there are few disagreeable reactions.
In most cases it produces no symptoms whatever except that in a few days your pain gets better. And it has great advantages over other pain killers such as aspirin and morphine, which sometimes have to be used but which require larger and larger doses to be effective and cause disagreeable side effects, such as constipation and nausea. Cobra venom can be used in any case of prolonged, intractable pain.
Use of Bee Venom
Another accidental observation led to the employment of another venom—bee venom. Some doctor with one of those minds that keeps relating up unrelated things found that bee keepers never got arthritis; and they were always being stung by bees. So he put these together and the result is we have the bee venom treatment for arthritis. Again, it is only a pain killer—it does not change the bony deposits in the joints. But relief from pain is about the most important thing the arthritis patient craves.

You can also get bee venom at the corner drug store. The dosage is ten bee stings. I don't know how big the bees are that make up the ten stings, nor how much venom they throw in per sting. But there you are.
The problem of the patient with severe regular pain is one which troubles physicians constantly. No one likes to prescribe the sovereign pain killer, morphine, except for a single or at most three or four doses. Aspirin helps some cases if given in large quantities.
I have a friend who last year had a pain around one rib that nearly drove him crazy all summer and no cause for it could ever be found. Bee venom finally fixed him up.
There are other methods of treating pain if cobra and bee venom fail—one is the use of vitamin B, and liver extract in the vein, another the exposure of the region of the spinal ganglia to X-ray.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
M. D.—A person 31 years old had a very good head of hair, but it is falling out in patches all over. A hairdresser said the trouble is internal, lacking some vitamin or other.
Answer: The description sounds like the disease called alopecia areata. It is not due to lack of vitamins. It can be cured. Go to a doctor who practices dermatology.

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION
SYNOPSIS
BARBARA WISTER, former actress, finds herself a widow at 27, when her husband dies. Her only friend in the small town of South Wintridge, where she lives, is
DR. TONY BRADSHAW, a young physician. Owner of the town's only big business is TOM KILCRAN, whose daughter, PAMELA, and wife, CLAIRE, are haughty, cold and selfish.
YESTERDAY: Barbara advertises in the Clarion for a roomer.
CHAPTER NINE
THE AD for a roomer had been running for ten days when Barbara was aroused at midnight by the hearty pounding of the knocker on her front door, and went downstairs to find a stout, gruff-voiced woman on her doorstep and Tom Shandy's taxicab wheezing at the curb.
"You the lady that's got a room to rent?" And when Barbara nodded, "Bring up the bag, son."
Barbara said, "Wouldn't you like to see the room first?"
Piercing dark eyes in a kindly, round face encompassed the girl and as much of the house as she could see in a single appraising glance. "I know it'll do. My name's Calder. Nurse Calder. I just got back from a case to find my last place sold out, lock, stock and barrel. Shandy, here, told me you had rooms to rent."
"Please come in. I hope you'll like it. The rent isn't very high and . . ."
"Just show me where it is. We'll talk details tomorrow."
Barbara led the way to the big front bedroom and lighted the lamps with rosy shades. It was cold in the room but the gay chintzes, the bright blue silk puff folded across the big four-poster bed, the cheery flowers and the sparkling cleanliness gave the room an air of welcome and comfort.
"I hope you'll like it."
"I'd be a fool if I didn't." Nurse Calder retorted. "I'll give you $10 a week for room and board and $4 a week to keep the room for me when I'm away on cases. Come from this town, but I work in Boston mostly. Like to have a place to come back to."
Ten dollars a week was a monumental sum to Barbara Wister at that point. "I'm glad you've come," she said at the door.
Nurse Calder gave her a long, searching look. "Reckon you are," she said. "You're sick?"
"No. I've been under rather a strain. I lost my husband a fortnight ago and . . ."
"Too bad. . . . Don't get up to get my breakfast in the morning."
"But I will! Good night, Miss Calder."
"If that girl doesn't head in, I'll have a patient instead of a landlady on my hands," the nurse grumbled to the closed door, but her eyes, so at odds with her bluff manner, were sympathetic because she knew the difference between strain and desperation and there was desperation in Barbara Wister's face.
Barbara slept sweetly and dreamlessly for the first time in more than two weeks and when she woke the sun was high in the heavens and the church bells were ringing for the 11 o'clock service.
Eleven o'clock! And with an answer to a prayer waiting for breakfast, she had overslept. She washed and hurried into her clothes, aware of the aroma of coffee.
Miss Calder was sitting at the kitchen table with the remains of her breakfast pushed away from her and the newspaper propped against the toaster. "Good morning! Well, you look as if you had a good sleep"—and then putting down Barbara's apologies with a gesture—"I heard you dressing and put some breakfast in the oven for you. The boys had his breakfast. I dressed him and put him out in the yard to play."

"Really, Miss Calder, I feel dreadfully . . ."
"You'll feel all right after you've had a good rest. My mother lives over Medbury way and he's got a houseful of youngsters about the age of your little fellow. I'm going over there today and I'd like to take the boy if you'll let me. We'd be back by supper time."
"That would be wonderful for me . . . and for him."
"Take yourself a good rest, Mrs. Wister."
"Rest? I've had nothing but rest all my useless life. What I want is work. I've been in and out of every shop and every office in this whole town and there doesn't seem to be a single thing I can do. It does seem as if there ought to be some way that I could be a useful citizen in a town of 7,000, doesn't it?"
"What about office work? Anybody can do that."
Barbara sighed. "Anybody that can answer to experience in stenography, typing or filing. I can't even do that. I'm disgusted with myself."
"Shucks, filing isn't anything more than putting things where they belong and keeping a record of where you've put 'em."
She was reading at dusk when she thought of what the nurse said. She'd put things where they belonged and kept a record. She'd once cataloged the Wister books. Her eyes swept the ceiling-high shelves that contained more than a thousand volumes, many of them still in their bright paper dust covers. She knew every one and where it had come from and what it contained; the books that had been sent to Mark to review; the books Stan Kitchener, the noted reviewer, had sent to them when he went to Spain, writing prophetically, "I may not come back. In any event, I want you to have them." And there were the books that arrived regularly from Drew Fothergill, who had been their best man and was president of the publishing firm of Fothergill and Lane.
Biographies, mysteries, current novels, historical and adventure books were there on her shelves, the friends with whom she had spent the lonely hours of her marriage. They were saleable, she knew, but she couldn't sell them. That was different from lending them. Thinking of that, she remembered that she meant to take a fresh lot of them to Ellen Cassidy and read to select them.
His name floated into the foreground of her mind and stood there in clear letters as if urging her to summon some evasive thought that lay in her unconscious mind. It was a clear, urgent message and she closed her eyes to complete it. Her rows and rows of books blended into the insistent demand knocking there at the door of her mind.
Then swiftly, unbidden, another picture came before her: the empty plumbing shop that stood on Main street between the flower shop and the bank, the shop that Cassidy couldn't rent.
"Ellen says she's read everything at the public library and they've nothing to compare with your books."
The door opened then, and to that underlayer of her mind Barbara saw it all!
Her mind went around crazily in a circle of spreading light and she went to her desk and drew a sheet of paper toward her. A plan emerged under her pencil and then she put it aside and began to write figures. She worked until dusk and then put it aside to await the morning and a call upon the plumber.
At 9 o'clock, she had been talking half an hour without stopping when Cassidy interrupted her.
"As I see it," he said, regarding her doubtfully over the top of his spectacles, "You've got an idea whereby I can make double money if I clean up the old shop, put a partition through it, making it two stores, and paint it."

Washington at a Glance
By Charles P. Stewart
WASHINGTON — Although Chairman Harry S. Truman of the senate's defense investigating committee was particular to say that he wasn't criticizing Chief Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board for inefficiency he complained of in the latter's organization, he did remark that he wished Manager Nelson would "exercise more of his authority."
Possibly the senator didn't consider it critical of the production boss to imply that he'd under-exercised the authority required to get proper action out of the bureau he's responsible for.
Some of Nelson's friends, however, are pretty sure about it.
To outsiders, looking in on the situation, Nelson has appeared, as a matter of fact, to be dealing with Army and Navy supply divisions in a tolerably hardboiled fashion. Still, various readjustments in relationships between the WPB and the two departments have been necessary, and, in the process, various problems have had to be solved. Maybe there's been more or less delay in hitting on the correct solutions.
Senator Truman not only thinks so, but ventures a guess at "wilful misconduct."
Steel for the Navy is the item mainly involved.
Steel Shortage
There isn't enough of it available. The Missouri senator evidently suspects that there's no good reason for the shortage. If not, the conclusion would seem to be that steel interests have been trying to hold down the supply with a view to keeping the price up. By way of being charitable with them, perhaps it is fair to assume that they are not attempting war profiteering, but simply are endeavoring to foreclose against a flooded post-war reservoir.

It scarcely requires saying that the steel folk pronounce this the worst libel ever invented.
The Navy folk agree with them which also is natural, for, if the yarn were true, it would suggest at least gross carelessness on their part, or even official connivance, in letting the steel contractors make good (or bad) at it.
Navy Secretary Frank Knox is sufficiently perturbed by it to have asked Chairman David I. Walsh of the senate's naval affairs committee to start an investigation of it. That is characteristic of these congressional investigations. First a committee is appointed to investigate something. It investigates and reports. Then another committee is appointed to investigate the initial report's findings. Then another and another and another. Is there ever a conclusive verdict? There is not!
"Conflicting reports" are a complication strongly emphasized by all the inquirers. They are all authoritative, they are from every direction and they all absolutely contradict one another in every particular.
Co-ordination obviously is what is called for.
Yet there is not a sign of it.
Poor Co-Ordination
Each outfit is operating 100 percent independently. They are even in disagreement with the White House. Illustratively, six or seven German saboteurs were on hand, waiting to be executed, but non-executable except upon orders from the executive mansion.

On the morning of August 7 news was broadcast by International News Service that six were to be extinguished.
It sounded official but President Roosevelt informed newspapermen that he was still reading testimony in the case.
The next day the six were electrocuted.
Information of that kind is confusing.
I was in the United States government's publicity service myself during the last war, but I'm darned if I didn't get more dependable dope than I've heard this time.
And dependability has its value.
If you're positive that what you're told is true, you know how to "play" it.
We haven't got much of a censorship in this country, but we do have a system of filtering an investigation through committees after committee, with no final report until after it is of no consequence.
I'm for putting some pep into it in its incipency.

Beautiful Party Announces Approaching Marriage of Miss Mary La Vonne Jordan

Mrs. John G. Jordan was a charming hostess Friday evening, honoring her daughter, Miss Mary LaVonne Jordan, with a beautiful announcement party, to which eighteen close friends of the honor guest were invited. The party was held at the lovely home of Dr. and Mrs. Jordan, on Yeoman Street.

Announcing the approaching marriage of Miss Jordan to Mr. Frank Creamer, the affair was most delightful from beginning to end.

Upon the arrival of the guests, who were gay and pretty in pastel summer formals, they found their places at the dining room table, and two small tables, which were pictures of typical bridal beauty. The large table was lovely with a handsome lace cloth and tall white tapers, encircled with silver bells and pink ribbons. The appointments were entirely of crystal white with a huge crystal bowl placed on a mirror, and abundantly filled with silver bells and pink roses, sweet peas, fern and sweet alysum. The faintness of desserts, carrying out the color scheme of pink and white were served. Each place was marked with silver bells, bedecked with lilies-of-the-valley and tied with pink ribbons, and upon examining each, the inscription, "Bonnie and Frank, September 6, 1942," which was cleverly concealed around the bell clapper. The bride was immediately showered with felicitations and best wishes.

The two small tables were similarly appointed with white linen cloths and one centered with sweet peas and the other calendulas and coreopsis. Following the gay time around the tables, the guests assembled in the long living room, so attractive in summer blooms, artistically arranged. The beautiful mantel was especially pretty with two huge vases of golden glow placed on either side of the hearth. Unusual entertainment for this type of party were games and contests of romantic nature, with Miss Beatrice Taylor and Mrs. Robert Creamer winning the prizes. Visiting and singing to the accompaniments of Miss Lorrie Merritt at the piano and Miss Jordan at the organ console, was greatly enjoyed.

Experts estimate that nearly 500,000 new homes a year will have to be built in the United States after the war.

Production in the United States between 1929 and 1941 showed a rise of 46 per cent in output per man hour.

Canada produced 6 1-2 million bushel of flaxseed in 1941.

RAILWAY SHOPS PRODUCE MUCH WAR MATERIAL

Pennsylvania Also Sends Experienced Employees To Aid War Effort

It was revealed Monday by Agent Carl Smith, at the local office of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, that in addition to the service it has rendered since the outbreak of the war in transportation of troops and munitions of war, the big railway company is now engaged, at various shops, in producing war equipment and machinery in the war industries.

It is also sponsoring three complete military railway battalions, for the United States Army, each with a commissioned officer personnel raised entirely from the railroad's own official and supervisory forces, and one of these battalions is actively in training.

Although the war production activities at the shops date only from about the middle of May, they have already reached large proportions. Work now going on includes the machining of certain ordnance parts; the casting of cylinders for 2,500 horsepower triple expansion Liberty marine engines, for the country's merchant fleet; the machining of rolling mill rolls, to be used in the production of ammunition cases; and the machining of frames for trumming presses, to be utilized by war industry plants in shearing off the "flashings," or rough projecting edges, from drop forgings.

Other work to which consideration is being given, or for which arrangements are in the process of being made, include the machining of tank parts; the machining of air compressor cylinders, and the finishing of cylinders, and air compressors, for installation in submarines; and the building of steel mill "hot metal" cars, used chiefly in carrying hot slag to dumps, but also employed in transporting molten metal from one place to another in a steel plant.

The two other military railway battalions sponsored by the Pennsylvania Railroad are at present being held as reserves. Each has a complete personnel of commissioned officers, consisting of officers and supervisory employees of the railroad still performing their regular duties, but enrolled in the Army Engineer Reserve Corps. The enlisted personnel will be selected by the War Department from railroad men already in the service, when these battalions are called to active duty.

the preparation of the United States air forces in Britain for full-scale action against the Hitler-ruled continent, Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle, renowned as the bomber of Tokyo, was in London. He has just finished a three-day tour of United States air bases in Britain.

Doolittle's presence in England for some time was disclosed for publication only today. His arrival was a tight secret until he had conferred with Maj. Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander in chief of the U. S. air forces in the European theater, and Brig. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, Spaatz' second in command.

The United States army air forces in the Middle East and European theaters were still in the breaking-in stage although bombers in the Mediterranean zone and fighter units in Britain already have gone into action.

United States army air fighters flew with a squadron of Canadians in a sweep of France over the week end.

A moderate-sized RAF force struck at western Germany Saturday night, losing five bombers, and early today a few German planes struck inland to the northern midlands of England and also bombed an east coast point.

In Africa, British light bombers cracked at Axis supply lines, scoring direct hits on lighters off the North African coast. The Axis, without confirmation, claimed destruction of 16 British planes in the past 24 hours.

Land action in Africa still was limited to reconnaissance and patrol.

An investigation of the accident, one of the worst in the history of United States military aviation, was launched, but the Army released no details on the possible cause.

People To Know

By IRIS LEE SPARKS

Nearly every little boy at some time in his life dreams of becoming a trainman, and one who really realized these dreams is John Babbitt, supervisor of the B. and O. here.

Stocky, trusty-blue-eyed, quiet-mannered Babbitt was born in North Hampton, Mass., attended high school there, and graduated at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology where he specialized in civil engineering. In 1917, Babbitt joined the army as a second lieutenant and saw action in France for seven months. He left the army in 1919, promoted in rank to a captain. Offered a job on the Pennsylvania Railroad in the Engineering Corps, Babbitt held this position until the depression when he transferred to his present job here as supervisor.

He is married to the former Edith Wells, has a daughter fourteen, Priscilla, and a son, eighteen, John, Jr.

Speaking of the railroad industry in the present emergency, Babbitt stated, "An industry which many thought out-dated has come back into its own. We are so busy with the war materials, in fact, that civilian travel is being discouraged, especially on week ends when there are so many soldiers to accommodate. In this war, we are operating under our own jurisdiction, instead of the government's as in World War I, and it is interesting to note we have had fewer accidents, more speed and an increased number of loads per car.

More or less worried about the foreign situation, said Babbitt, "Of course I don't want the government to divulge any secrets but I do wish we knew more what they were trying to do. The Allies have more natural resources, more men, more industries, but we are being cleaned up on practically every front—and what are we doing? Nothing."

"I would like a little more reassurance as to what is happening and why we aren't doing anything. I won't criticize the administration individually, but the departments ought to get together—for instance, they are now disagreeing over ceiling prices and wages which must have a definite effect on the war. When the officials disagree, what do they expect of the people? Why don't they stick to what they say about the sugar and rubber shortage? It shakes my confidence to find so much disagreement and lack of organization amidst our leaders, but I think we'll come out all right."

For relaxation, Babbitt plays tennis (only I can't find time for it much any more), reads, or tinkers about in his basement workshop.

tops for a 100 yards as it plunged toward a flat spot atop 2,200-foot Garnet Peak on the mountain, then burst into flames.

Sergeant Lee's mother, Mrs. Hazel G. Lee, said the soldier was inducted in March, 1940, leaving a machine shop at Mt. Gilead, to enter the Army. He was made a sergeant a year later. The Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor cut short a furlough Lee was spending at his Columbus home last December. He visited his mother again in June.

DETROITERS RESENT MAGAZINE FEATURE ABOUT WAR EFFORT

miracles of machines that have been performed; nothing about Chrysler tank production, nothing about what Ford has done in making airplane engines.

Thomas, declaring "there have been a few isolated strikes in the automobile industry, but not one-tenth the number there were before Pearl Harbor," added that "there is a definite common purpose between labor and management in Detroit to maintain all-out war production."

Jeffries said he didn't think Detroit would take any official action to repudiate the picture story, declaring "I'd just call it a yellow magazine and let it go at that."

The Life article stated that Detroit's war production had been "cut by wildcat strikes and sit-downs" and that the city's work, led by the lusty law, seem to hate and suspect their bosses more than ever."

EARLY MORNING DRIVING IS BAD TIME TO DRIVE

Three Operators Are Taken Into Custody Due To Intoxication

Apparently the "wee small hours of the morning" are bad times to drive—for those inclined to absorb a little too much hard liquor, is the opinion of the police, who find that there is probably more driving while drunk from midnight to 3 A. M. than any other time.

This belief is borne out by the police records over the weekend, when three drivers were taken into custody by the police, and listed for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Oscar Howe, 43, this city, was arrested Monday morning at 2:20 A. M.

Walter S. Truesdell, 51, Bloomington, was taken into custody at about the same hour, and James Harrison, 39, 1400 Dutton Ave., Columbus, was picked up at 1:20 A. M.

The three men were to appear before Judge S. A. Murry sometime Monday, for the usual $100 and costs if found guilty, and the suspension of $50 of the fine.

Theodore Adkins, Huntington, W. Va., was picked up on Dayton Avenue and listed for reckless operation, Sunday evening. He posted $15 bond for his appearance later.

The police also rounded up a half score of persons for being intoxicated, and these added to the work of Municipal Judge Murry Monday.

Most of those picked up for intoxication were arrested over Sunday.
